Beloved Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

September 1, the Indiction or ecclesiastical (church) New Year, is a time when Orthodox Christians have always paused to give thanks to our Creator for the bountiful world He has given us to live in. Since 1989, based on an initiative of our late Ecumenical Patriarch Dimitrios of Constantinople, it has also been observed as the annual “Day of Prayer for the Protection of Creation.” New hymns which focus on this theme were composed to accompany those already designated for that day. He did so, because of his growing realization of the many threats posed by our industrialized world to the welfare of life on our planet, both human and otherwise.

Building on that initiative, our current Patriarch, Bartholomew, has worked hard to bring the growing environmental crisis to the attention of world leaders, both religious and secular. For this reason, he is often called the “Green Patriarch.” Every year, he issues a public statement on September 1 that addresses this theme. Past years’ messages can be read online at the Patriarchate’s website – see last year’s under “messages” at www.patriarchate.org. We still await the issuing of this year’s statement. This practice has inspired a worldwide movement among Christians to observe this new holiday. We will celebrate it for the first time here at the Cathedral this year, with Great Vespers on August 31 at 7:00 p.m., Orthros the next day at 9:00 a.m., with the Divine Liturgy following at 10:00 a.m. Everyone is cordially invited and encouraged to attend. In anticipation of that event, I would like to focus the rest of this article on some basic teachings of our faith that pertain to the welfare of the earth, humanity’s role, and the overarching need for compassion in our dealings with it. Here we understand “compassion” to mean “understanding the suffering of others and wanting to do something about it” [www.wordweb.info].

The Christian understanding of the earth, our home, is based, first of all, on Genesis: God created it, and called it good; he also created the first human beings in His own image, and told them: “Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth and subdue it; and have dominion over. . .every living thing that moves upon the earth.” Some Christians see this as warrant to exploit the earth, but I believe that this is becoming a minority opinion. The “dominion” mentioned here is better understood as that of a steward than of a ruler. To continue: the disobedience of the first parents brought sin and death into the world (the “fall”); Jesus Christ redeemed humanity on the Cross and conquered sin and death by His glorious Resurrection; in doing so, according to the apostle Paul, he also redeemed the rest of creation (Romans 8:18-23):

I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing with the glory that is to be revealed to us. For the creation waits with eager longing for the revealing of the sons of God; for the creation was subjected to futility, not of its own will but by the will of him who subjected it in hope; because the creation itself will be set free from its bondage to decay and obtain the glorious liberty of the children of God. We know that the whole creation has been groaning in travail together until now; and not only the creation, but we ourselves, who have the first fruits of the Spirit, groan inwardly as we wait for adoption as sons, the redemption of our bodies.

If God called the creation “good” when He created it, and if it shall be liberated along with us from its bondage to decay, then this has serious implications for how we as Christians should view our earthly home and therefore, how we should treat it. For too long, many people have assumed that the resources of this vast planet are limitless, and that we humans are entitled to exploit them without taking into account the harmful effects that our activities have on us and on the natural world, which, like it or not, we depend on for our very existence. In our generation, we are learning, to our dismay, that this is not true, and that we need to take better care of this beautiful world we have inherited, before we inadvertently make it unlivable.

For example, the warming of our planet is becoming a looming crisis. Already, we are witnessing mass extinctions of creatures in every part of our planet, along with prolonged droughts that put millions of people at risk for starvation. Our rising oceans (because of glacier ice melt) are starting to encroach on low-laying areas, including Miami, Roanoke, VA, Bangladesh, and island nations around the world. How can we remain indifferent to such suffering and dislocation? Patriarch Bartholomew challenges us with the following words:

As the Church Fathers also teach, the root of all evils that plague humanity is selfishness and the highest expression of virtue is selfless love. It is not permitted for faithful Christians who are seeking sanctification to remain indifferent to the effects of their acts on their fellow human beings. The sensitivity of (CONTINUED on PAGE 2)
Orthodox Christianity stresses a vision of the world transfigured through Christ, and calls each us to understand our calling in life in relation to our ultimate goal, union with God in a redeemed creation. The Church sends us out into the world to offer witness and service in the name of Jesus Christ. In witnessing to the transforming presence of God in the world, our approach emphasizes love and respect for all of God’s creatures, as well as compassion for all those who suffer, and the desire to do whatever we can to help alleviate their distress. This must extend even to our children and generations yet unborn who will pay the ultimate price for our obstinacy, if we do not act.

In fashioning the Orthodox response to the current environmental crisis, we are inspired by the example of our holy people – especially the ascetic saints, the monks and nuns who dedicate their lives to prayer and worship, such as St. Isaac. As such individuals grow in their faith and closeness to God, they come to see the world in the way that the Lord does: with tears of compassion, for all the suffering in it. A good modern example of this attitude can be found in the works of one of our most recent saints, Silouan of the Holy Mountain of Athos. In a chapter “On Love,” he says:

“If we wish to love God, we must observe all that the Lord commanded us in the Gospels. Our hearts must brim with compassion, and not only feel love for our fellow-men but sympathy for everything created of God. That green leaf on the tree which you so needlessly plucked – it was not wrong, only rather a pity for the little leaf. The heart that has learned to love feels sorry for every created thing.

This is the attitude of compassionate love that inspires all of our work as Orthodox Christians on behalf of the environment. Each creature, large or small, is loved by God, and has an intrinsic value apart from that which human beings accord it. The heart that has learned to love must therefore try in every possible way to protect and preserve life in all its glorious variety, both on a local level and on a global level. At the same time, we must accept that the survival of humanity is also dependent on the survival of our fellow creatures. The world, after all, is one huge ecosystem. Human beings are a part of this system – not separated from it. As the world goes, so do we. Our compassion must lead to action. We can do no less.

In Christ’s love, Fr. Christopher Bender, Dean

Netflix recently announced its intention to release a sequel to 13 Reasons Why, the controversial series that depicts a fictional teen suicide. As a child and adolescent psychiatrist at ground zero of the adolescent suicide problem, I feel compelled to share my concerns about this influential and concerning program.

Just one month after its release on Netflix, I binge-watched the first season of 13 Reasons Why. I was inspired to do so after several parents asked me whether they should be allowing their teens to watch the series. From an artistic perspective, undeniably the characters and narrative of 13 Reasons Why are compelling, and it is understandable that teens are drawn to it. Furthermore, the sensitive topics raised (e.g., bullying, sexual assault, substance use, suicide) are important and should not be ignored. After having watched the entire series, however, I became concerned.

What follows are 13 reasons why you should be concerned, too:

1. The series romanticizes suicide, which places youthful viewers at risk for suicide contagion. We know from research that dramatized portrayals of suicide on television and in movies can lead to increased rates of suicide and suicide attempts using the same methods displayed on the screen. Furthermore, this impact is intensified when suicide is presented in the absence of information about mental illness.

2. It focuses on blaming others, as opposed to recognizing that greater than 90 percent of individuals who complete suicide actually struggled with mental illness.

3. It downplays the cognitive distortions of depression, and instead repeatedly suggests that suicide was the protagonist's rational "choice" in order to escape the emotional pain caused by others or perhaps, more provocatively, to take revenge on those who wronged her.

4. The imagery of self-injury and the suicide itself are disturbing and extremely graphic, This is known to increase the risk of imitation. Fortunately, most youth will not become suicidal after being exposed to suicide. That being said, we know that a small subset of more vulnerable teens, especially those struggling with mental health issues, are at increased risk.

5. There are prolonged rape scenes (yes, more than one, and from multiple perspectives) that are frankly unnecessarily detailed and potentially traumatizing for those with a history of sexual assault.

6. There are fights and beatings that are gratuitously violent and likely emotionally distressing, especially for bullied and traumatized youth.

7. The school's post-suicide intervention strategy doesn't come close to following national evidence-based guidelines or standards. For instance, allowing Hannah's locker to become a long-term mini-shrine inadvertently creates an emotionally charged reminder of the suicide, which experts warn could be internalized by particularly vulnerable youth as a means to gain recognition.

8. It portrays the school leadership as villains primarily concerned about the legal implications of the suicide, as opposed to recognizing that teachers and school administrators are not only a potential resource for support, but also very much part of the bereaved community.

9. It mocks the role of the counselor, once again suggesting that adults are somehow incapable of really listening to youth at risk.

10. It is too dangerous a topic to use for entertainment, and yet, that is its primary purpose. Hannah was supposed to be an outcast, but she was strikingly beautiful, perfectly coiffed, envied by peers, always quick with sarcastically winy retorts -and only starts to show slight signs of disturbance (darker circles, tousled hair, irritability, hopelessness) on the day of her completed suicide.

11. It undermines the role of the concerned parent. Parents need to know that there are mental health resources to support families when youth are struggling and that mental health interventions are evidence-based and effective.

12. The way the series is produced & publicized, teens are clearly the target audience, and yet the content is presented in a way that is very adult. Netflix responded to concerns of mental health advocates by updating the trigger warnings to carry additional advisories, Unfortunately, in all likelihood, many adolescents are watching the show unaccompanied by the adults needed to reinforce these warnings.

   This series had real potential to make a difference--to reduce the stigma of mental illness, promote mental health care, and inform the public about the signs and symptoms of adolescent depression. But it fell short, and we need to do better. Child mental health professionals need to help our communities understand that there is no single right way to talk to teens, that what is most important is to make time and space for the conversation to happen. In talking with adolescents about a serious topic like suicide, it's crucial that adults be open and honest, follow their lead, and really listen. We know that talking to teens about suicide does not increase the risk of suicide. It is silence that is dangerous.

   If in crisis, anyone can call 1-800-273-TALK or test "start" to 741741. There also are excellent talking points and educational resources on save.org and starcenter.pitt.edu.

Saturday, September 16, 2017, will mark the beginning of another Greek School year. Students are to report to their classrooms at 10 a.m. while parents stay and submit their registration forms and tuitions in the fellowship room. To celebrate the start of an exciting school year, the annual ice cream social will take place after classes on the first day.

Classes for children start at Pre-K and continue to 7th. In order to start first grade a student must be in first grade or higher in their American School. There are 9 teachers and 2 teaching assistants helping with the classes. An additional teacher was added this year in order to not combine grades. Our curriculum focuses on academic skills for learning Modern Greek, our history, feast days, prayers, and hymns.

Teachers will prepare to start the new school year by participating in a Metropolis Teacher Training Seminar at St. Nicholas on Saturday, August 26. Two of the presenters will be Joanna Darakos and Kelly Gary who will present on “Effective Strategies for Teaching Greek.”

In addition to the children’s classes on Saturdays, adults interested in learning Greek can attend classes on evenings starting the first week of October.

Registration forms are below and on the next page. For questions or more information, e-mail Maria at mstamoolis@verizon.net or call at 412.963.7283.

Our Cathedral is graced by two music ministries grounded in tradition that we hope you will consider participating in:

The first is rooted at the Analogion (the Chanter Bookstand). Our Analogion Ministry, blessed by the volunteer service of Dr. Nick Giannoukakis, invites and welcomes anyone with some musical ability, especially the younger generation, to join and learn the beautiful and 1200 year-old tradition of Byzantine hymnology and chant. Those who faithfully adhere to the ministry will not only have an opportunity to grow musically, but more importantly, will solidify their understanding of Greek, gain an appreciation for the structure of the services, and a better insight into our Orthodox faith and its theology through a comprehension of the hymns. With the exception of the summer months (June-August), the Ministry will focus on the Sunday Orthros and the occasional Vespers, in addition to the evening services of Lent and Holy Week. Between June and early September, the Ministry will also focus on the Holy and Divine Liturgy.

Dr. Giannoukakis, who was distinguished and tonsured as Protopsaltis by Metropolitan Maximos in 1998, and noted to be among the “who is who” of Byzantine Chanters in a historical compendium published in Greece in 1994, is also the only chanter in our Metropolis to hold a certificate and diploma in Byzantine Music from a Greek Music Conservatory. Dr. Giannoukakis, personally-trained by renowned and respected Greek chanters (Constantin Lagouros, Georgios Syrkas, Emmanuel Hatzimarkos), offers music to the highest possible standards of the Great Church of Christ (the Ecumenical Patriarchate) and has successfully trained young and old individuals for more than 25 years. To learn more, and to consider participating, contact Dr. Giannoukakis at ngm@andrew.cmu.edu or at ngiann1@pitt.edu. All educational materials are complimentary.

The second is rooted in the rich polyphonic innovations of the late Rudolph Agraphiotis who in the early 1900s, first composed the lyrical Liturgy conducted in our church to this day. Some of the choir members are among those who came together to constitute the first choir directed by Mr. Agraphiotis. Today, the choir is in the very capable hands of Mr. Steve Andrews who directs it as another of our Cathedral's volunteers. The choir can be heard during the Divine Liturgy for most of the year's Sunday services as well as at the services for Holy Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The Choir invites and welcomes anyone with some musical ability, especially the younger generation, to join. To learn more, and to consider participating, contact Mr. Steve Andrews at beyondfromwithin@comcast.net. Why not join both ministries? As it is written: “He who delights in the Lord, and walks in the Light will not stumble” (From the Doxastikon of the Orthros of the 5th Sunday of Lent).

Thanks for sharing your children with us every Sunday!
From the Church school Desk

Sunday, September 17, 2017, the bells will start to ring again for the beginning of Church School with an Agiasmo (Blessings of the Water)!

As the Church School Director I am looking forward to working with my staff, teachers and YOU (the St. Nicholas parishioners) to enrich the lives of our children. St. Nicholas is our spiritual family and we all should take part in educating our youth (the you of tomorrow). As a community, we need to show our children our love and devotion to our Orthodox faith.

This year’s Church School theme is You are the “Voice” of Christ in a Changing World. Church School students will be given an assignment to ‘spread Orthodoxy’ by being good stewards of the church by using their time, talent and treasure in Service to our Families, Friends, Neighbors, Community and Christ.

Every week your child is encouraged to bring “a donation” to Church School (this will help them learn the lesson of “stewardship”), plus, be assigned homework: Do something nice for someone!

New this year, “What I did not learn in Sunday School” Adult Education Class! Starting in October, Deacon Robert Lykos will have special classes after the Divine Liturgy on various topics for the adults of our beloved parish.

Please take the time to look over the attached 2017-2018 Church School Calendar, fill out the registration form (and bring it on or before the 17th) and volunteer your time, talent and treasure to help our children.

I would like to thank the parents in advance for sharing your children with us every Sunday! But, what can you do to help? You can help our Church School program, in the final analysis, your child, by bringing him/her every Sunday. Encourage your child to tell you about the lesson taught for the day, as well as, the craft brought home. Pray with your child. (Each lesson should begin and end with Prayer.) Attend worship services together as a family; Divine Liturgy starts at 10 a.m.

Yours in Christ, Miss Michelle

Dear Friends,

Please join us to help the Nativity of the Theotokos Monastery fundraise to build new facilities. Each year, the monastery hosts a dinner to raise awareness and financial support for its building project. We are honored to serve on the committee to help plan this year's dinner, which will be held on Saturday, September 9th. We hope that you will consider attending this beautiful event. If you cannot attend, please show your love for the monastery by offering financial support to help defray the costs of the dinner. Every donation, large or small, brings spiritual benefit and honors our blessed Panagia, for whom the monastery was named. Together we can help to build a new monastery "brick by brick"!

The Nativity of the Theotokos Monastery was the first female Greek Orthodox Monastery established in the U.S. in 1989. It is the only Greek Orthodox Monastery in southwestern PA. Expansion of the facilities will allow the sisters to accommodate new novices and the many visitors who wish to attend services and/or stay overnight on the monastery grounds. Over the years, the monastery has quietly and humbly struggled with modest support from a handful of churches and individuals. Our hope is to continue to raise awareness and solicit the help of the many faithful in our Metropolis, so that we can all play a part in supporting our sisterhood and expanding this precious gem where they so generously welcome and minister to us all. We hope that you will find it in your hearts to donate to this very worthy cause, attend the dinner, and help spread awareness with in your parish. Should you have any questions, please feel free to contact Ellen Kaffenes at 412-63 8-8296 or at ellenkaffenes@comcast.net. May our most blessed Panagia keep you in her care!

With Love in Christ, the 2017 Nativity of the Theotokos Adelfotita Committee

St. Nicholas Sixty Club: A TRIP DOWN MEMORY LANE
On June 19, 1969, a group of parishioners sixty years old or older responded to a letter from Fr. George Scoulas to attend a luncheon sponsored by the St. Nicholas Philoptochos. “The purpose of this unique gathering was to initiate a program of activities for this age group to share companionship in a church-sponsored organization.” Thus was born the St. Nicholas Sixty Club as reported in a brief history by the late Jerry Vondas, thirty-seven years later. The first committee consisted of Peter Zikos, Despina Branting and Helen Harris; the latter two became the club’s first advisors.

According to Mr. Vondas’ account the first get together was attended by fifty-eight people including His Grace Bishop Gerasimos, and by 2006 the Sixty Club had an enrollment of 240, including members from our sister churches. Their first travel activity was an overnight trip to Washington, D.C.

Besides the many varieties of luncheons and dinners, there have been dozens of day trips and multi-day outings from New England to Savannah, from New York City to Mackinaw Island.

Recently our most popular activity has been attending numerous theater productions, often followed by dinner at local restaurants. We have had “Slider Luncheons”, a Zentangle demonstration, a very successful “Mystery and Masterpieces Party”, a very informative program on “End of Life Decisions,” and a delightfully entertaining Winter Social Luncheon. We expect to reschedule the CPR demonstration shortly. And the Planning Committee is always open to suggestions. Check the Sunday bulletin for our next meeting.

We encourage our parishioners and friends of all ages to participate in our activities. Look for our exhibit on STEWARDSHIP SUNDAY and browse through our pictures – see how many faces from the past you can identify!

The Assembly of Canonical Orthodox Bishops of the United States of America
Response to Racist Violence in Charlottesville, VA

Friday, August 18, 2017

The Assembly of Canonical Orthodox Bishops of the United States of America stands with all people of good will in condemning the hateful violence and lamenting the loss of life that resulted from the shameful efforts to promote racial bigotry and white supremacist ideology in Charlottesville, Virginia.

The Orthodox Church emphatically declares that it does not promote, protect or sanction participation in such reprehensible acts of hatred, racism, and discrimination, and proclaims that such beliefs and behaviors have no place in any community based in respect for the law and faith in a loving God.

The essence of the Christian Gospel and the spirit of the Orthodox Tradition are entirely and self-evidently incompatible with ideologies that declare the superiority of any race over another. Our God shows no partiality or favoritism (Deuteronomy 10:17, Romans 2:11). Our Lord Jesus Christ broke down the dividing wall of hostility that had separated God from humans and humans from each other (Ephesians 2:14). In Christ Jesus, the Church proclaims, there can be neither Jew nor Greek, slave nor free, male or female, but all are one (Galatians 3:28). Furthermore, we call on one another to have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather to expose them (Ephesians 5:11). And what is darkness if not hatred? The one who hates his brother is in the darkness and walks in the darkness (1 John 2:11)!

Furthermore, in 1872, Hierarchs from around the world assembled in Constantinople and denounced all forms of xenophobia and chauvinism (phyletism). They agreed that the promotion of racial or national supremacy and ethnic bias or dissension in the Church of Christ is to be censured as contrary to the sacred teachings of the Christian Gospel and the holy canons of the Church. It is formally condemned as heresy, the strongest category of false teaching.

Finally, such actions as we have witnessed in recent days, by self-proclaimed white supremacists, neo-Nazis, and various racists and fascists, betray the core human values of love and solidarity. In this, we pray wholeheartedly for the families of those who lost their lives or suffered in these tragic events. In like manner, we cannot condone any form of revenge or retaliation by any group or individual. Therefore, we fervently appeal to every person of good will, and especially the leaders of our great nation, to consider and adopt ways of reconciling differences in order to rise above any and all discrimination in our history, our present, and our future.
If we turn to the Church Fathers, we see that they attribute the highest importance to oikonomia (stewardship or economy), which in their eyes implied a broader and more inclusive concept of revelation and salvation, identified with God’s vision and desire to save the whole world. For our great theological teachers and spiritual masters, economy in fact refers to our very salvation by the all-embracing love of God for all humankind and to the universal compassion of the Creator for all creation. Somewhere along the line, we unfortunately shrunk the theme of “stewardship” to purely monetary terms that primarily include making contributions to philanthropic organizations – probably as a result of a narrow interpretation of scripture, and possibly as a result of the rigid focus of modern society. All of this invariably affects not just our understanding of the moral obligation that we have toward one another as human beings, but also inevitably distorts the worldview that shapes our moral responsibility toward creation. By limiting our attention to divine commandments for human compassion, we have invariably excised from scripture the clear mandate to creation care. Yet, these two dimensions of Christian life are integrally interrelated; one cannot envisage human progress without ecological preservation. The way we treat God’s creation in nature essentially reflects the way we respect human beings created “in the image and likeness of God.” The reality is that we should respond to nature with the same tenderness that we are called to respond to people. All of our spiritual activities are ultimately measured by their impact on the natural creation; just as all of our ecological choices are finally evaluated by their effect on the poor.
